RESEARCH EXPERIENCE

Research on the Teaching of Mandala Thangka Based on Intangible Cultural Heritage Inheritance

11/2025-09/2026

Supervisor: Li LU, Associate Professor, College of History and Culture (Tourism, Archaeology and Museology), Sichuan University

- Aimed to address the religious confinement, rigid apprenticeship, and limited public reach in the inheritance and modern communication of Mandala Thangka, an Intangible Cultural Heritage (ICH).
- Analyzed canonical Buddhist texts and art historical literature on Mandala Thangka, unpacking its geometric grammar and ritual symbolism as visual-cultural systems.
- Conducted long-term participant observation and semi-structured interviews at Xiangzang Art School, documenting on-site teaching practices, craft transmission, and apprenticeship dynamics.
- Identified gaps between religious discourse and public understanding of Thangka, informing the design of accessible cultural communication strategies.
- Developed the triple-integrated pedagogical model of geometry, craftsmanship, and ritual to systematize fragmented ICH inheritance practices.
- Curated the immersive “Entry-to-Thangka” study path and artistic healing modules, translating religious symbolism into public-facing cultural experiences.
- Compiled visual teaching kits, narrative guides, and interactive templates to facilitate public engagement with ethnic cultural heritage.
- Drafted research sections on ICH communication mechanisms and modern educational transformation for project deliverables.

Spark Heritage: A Revitalization & Development Model for Urban-Fringe Ancient Architecture

10/2025-09/2026

Supervisor: Song DU, Associate Professor, College of Arts, Sichuan University

- Conducted policy and academic literature review, identifying communication gaps for niche urban-fringe ancient architecture under national cultural revitalization initiatives.
- Led on-site fieldwork and in-depth stakeholder interviews at Pingwu Bao'en Temple, documenting geographic isolation, low visibility, and academic-only tour limitations.
- Analyzed architectural and cultural data, extracting core narratives like the "Six Treasures" and avoiding popular IP homogenization.
- Developed immersive storytelling guidebooks and interactive games, translating academic heritage knowledge into accessible public experiences.
- Designed 5 differentiated tourism routes for small-sized ancient towns in big cities like Chengdu, Mianyang, and Chongqing to enhance site accessibility.
- Developed a digital mini-program with travel guides and interactive communities and filmed promotional videos showcasing heritage features and revitalization practices.
- Collected visitor data and conducted questionnaire analysis, evaluating model effectiveness and optimizing replicable strategies.

European Research on Chinese Craft Art History in the First Half of the 20th Century

05/2025

Supervisor: Chengqing ZHAO, Professor, College of Arts, Sichuan University

- Served as a research assistant for this National Social Science Fund Project (Art Studies), focusing on the 1900–1950 European research module on Chinese lacquer art.
- Adopted a targeted literature review to collect English works by European art historians/sinologists on Chinese lacquer art, aligned with Chinese archival materials to clarify the module's research scope.
- Applied source criticism and cross-cultural comparison to verify the authenticity of visual materials (European museum lacquerware images, academic illustrations) and cross-checked Western scholarly records with Chinese archival documents to confirm source reliability.
- Conducted citation verification and textual collation to check the accuracy of citations in the draft, aligned factual descriptions with the historical context of Sino-European craft exchanges, and standardized academic writing norms.
